MORNING REPORT

Today's economic developments and market movements.

Key themes

Markets were calm on Friday with little economic data to drive direction.

US equities finished slightly higher as implied equity market volatility slipped to its lowest level since 2019. US shares gained for a fourth consecutive week.

Treasury yields were modestly higher across the curve as markets continued to digest higher-for-longer messaging.

The US dollar was little changed, while the Aussie dollar held onto most of its gains after failing to break through resistance at 67 cents.

Share markets:

US equities gained on Friday with little key economic data to drive momentum. The VIX index, which measures implied volatility option contracts tied to the S&P 500 fell to its lowest level since 2019.

The S&P 500 gained 0.15% on Friday to finish the week 1.5% higher, the fourth consecutive weekly gain. The NASDAQ slipped 0.1% but remained 4.2% higher over the week.

The ASX 200 dropped 0.8% on Friday, futures are pointing to some positive momentum at the open this morning.

Interest rates:

US treasury yields finished modestly higher across the curve. The 2-year yield rose 3 basis points to 4.82%, while the 10-year yield was up 4 basis points to 4.42%.

After briefly pricing in two full rate cuts from the Fed in 2024, the implied probability of a second rate cut has been lengthened to around 67%.

The 3-year Aussie futures yield rose 2 basis points to 3.86%, while the 10-year futures yield was up 3 basis points to 4.26%.

Cash rate futures no longer imply and chance of a rate hike from the RBA and are pricing in around a 70% chance of a cut by the end of the year.

Foreign exchange:

The US dollar index finished little changed on Friday after trading between a low of 104.39 and a high of 104.79. The DXY is currently sitting around 104.45.

The Aussie dollar drifted lower before finding buyers at 0.6649. The AUD/USD regained ground in New York trade to re-test and fail resistance around the 0.67 handle, but the Aussie held on to most of the gains to close at 0.6693.

Commodities:

Commodity prices were broadly firmer on Friday. West Texas Intermediate (WTI) oil futures rallied 1.0% to US$80.0 per barrel. Gold (1.6%), copper (2.4%) and iron ore (0.8%) also gained.

Australia:

There were no major economic data releases on Friday.

Today's key data and events

Time	Event	Exp	Prev
9:01am	UK Rightmove House Prices May		1.1%
11:15am	CH 1-Year Loan Prime Rate	3.45%	3.45%
	CH 5-Year Loan Prime Rate	3.95%	3.95%

China:

China's economic rebound remained unevenly skewed towards manufacturing and imports in April as retail spending slowed and the property sector remained a large drag on the economy.

Industrial production rose 6.7% over the year to April, accelerating from the 4.5% annual gain recorded in March and topping expectations for a 5.5% increase. However, retail sales missed the mark, rising 2.3% in annual terms. This was down from 3.1% in March and points to underlying weakness in demand.

Over the first four months of 2024 property investment tumbled 9.8% compared to the same period last year, while residential property sales were 31.1% lower.

Authorities announced further plans to support the residential property sector including the removal of mortgage rate floors and looser deposit requirements. The central bank will also extend funds to State Owned Enterprises to purchase unsold homes and mop up excess supply.

New Zealand:

The producer price index (PPI) measure of input prices rose 0.7% in the March quarter, the slowest quarterly pace in three quarters. However, output prices accelerated, rising 0.9% in the quarter up from 0.7% in the December quarter.

United States:

The Conference Board leading index fell -0.6% in April, below all estimates. This followed a reading a -0.3% fall in March. Consumer sentiment and forward orders were the biggest drags on the index.
