MORNING REPORT

Today's economic developments and market movements.

Key themes

Markets were mixed as developments in the Middle East dominated sentiment, with President Trump rejecting Tehran's latest proposal, while the FOMC separately left policy unchanged and Chair Powell indicated this would be his final meeting as Chair.

Equity markets were subdued, though sentiment found some support from strong AI and cloud-related growth reported by major US technology firms, while the ASX 200 recorded its seventh consecutive daily decline.

US bond markets sold off sharply as hawkish dissent at the FOMC challenged statement language viewed as implying an easing bias, while Australian government bonds found support after a softer-than-expected core inflation outcome.

The USD strengthened, with the Australian dollar recording its weakest daily performance against the greenback since March.

Oil prices surged, with Brent climbing to its highest level since 2022.

Financial Markets

Markets were mixed overnight, with a range of headlines shaping sentiment. Developments in the Middle East saw reports that President Trump has rejected Tehran's latest proposal, reaffirming that the US will not lift its naval blockade of the Strait of Hormuz until a deal addressing Iran's nuclear programme is secured.

In the US, the FOMC left policy unchanged at its April meeting in an 8–4 vote. In his press conference, Chair Powell noted that this would be his final meeting as Chair, adding that he intends to remain on the Board as Governor until investigations into the Federal Reserve are concluded with “finality and transparency”.

- Equity markets were generally lower. In the US, equities were subdued, with the S&P 500 and NASDAQ 100 little changed and the Dow Jones down -0.6%. Strong growth reported by Microsoft, Alphabet and Amazon in their AI and cloud related divisions helped offset broader weakness.
- European equities struggled, with the Euro Stoxx 50 down -0.3% and the FTSE 100 posting a deeper decline of -1.2%. Asian markets diverged, with the Hang Seng up 1.7% while the Nikkei 225 fell -1.0%. Locally, the ASX 200 recorded its seventh consecutive daily decline, down -0.3%.
- US bond markets reacted sharply to the Fed's divided decision, with hawkish dissent over statement language in focus, pushing the 2 year yield up 11bps and the 10 year 8bps. Futures pricing has reversed recent moves, now assigning an 11% probability of a rate hike by year-end.
- Australian government bonds found support following a softer than expected core inflation outcome. The 3 year yield fell 4bps and the 10 year yield declined 3bps. Following the CPI release, swap markets now price a 67% probability of a rate hike at next week's meeting.
- FX markets saw broad USD strength, with the DXY up 0.3%. The AUD recorded its weakest daily performance against the greenback since March, falling -0.9% to 0.7114.
- Commodity markets were dominated by sharp gains in oil following news that President Trump rejected Iran's latest proposal. Brent rose 8.1% to US$120/bbl, its highest level since 2022, while WTI climbed 7.0% to US$107/bbl. Gold declined further by -1.1%, while iron ore edged 0.6% higher.

International Data

The FOMC kept the stance of policy unchanged at its April meeting. The tone of the statement was broadly balanced, with a sanguine view given for GDP growth and the labour market and inflation simply characterised as “elevated”. Chair Powell noted in the press conference that, in his view, policy is in a good place to take time to monitor conditions, being at the “high end of neutral, perhaps mildly restrictive”. Hammack, Kashkari, and Logan also showed greater concern over inflation than the labour market at this meeting, wanting to maintain the target range for the federal funds rate but not the “inclusion of an easing bias in the statement at this time”.

The Bank of Canada also kept its policy stance unchanged overnight. The conflict in the Middle East and US trade policy were called out as sources of uncertainty and risk for the global economy. The outlook for Canada's economy was regarded as little changed from January.

US durable goods orders rose 0.8% in March after a 1.2% decline in February. Core goods orders jumped 3.3% in the month, after an upwardly revised 1.6% gain in February.

US housing starts jumped 10.8% in March as building permits fell 10.8%.

Euro Area economic confidence fell from 96.2 to 93.0 in April, around 7% below the average of the past 5 years.

Local Data

In Australia, March CPI printed broadly as expected, with headline inflation at 1.4%qtr driven by fuel prices, while the trimmed mean rose a softer-than-expected 0.8%qtr, pointing to limited broader passthrough into underlying inflation pressures at this stage (see here).
