MORNING REPORT

Today's economic developments and market movements.

Key themes

US President Trump rejected Iran's response to his peace proposal, calling it a "piece of garbage". Trump will be looking to revive his plan for the military to escort ships through the strait. While a fragile ceasefire remains in place, Trump admitted it is on "massive life support".

Oil prices rose, with Brent gaining more than $3 to 104.5. Performance across major global equity indices was mixed. In FX markets, the DXY pared earlier gains and finished broadly unchanged, just below 98.

Treasuries sold off by around 6-7bp across the curve, while Gilts performed even worse, as pressure on British Prime Minister Keir Starmer to resign intensified further.

Australian 10Y yield was little changed, as investors continued to speculate about fiscal policy changes in today's Federal Budget.

Financial Markets

Global markets were unsettled again and oil prices surged after US President Trump rejected Iran's response to his peace proposal, calling it a "piece of garbage". The episode again underscored the US's struggle to find a workable path to reopening the Strait of Hormuz, while also negotiating a way to curb Iran's nuclear weapons ambitions. Trump is now trying to revive his plan for the military to escort ships through the strait. While a fragile ceasefire remains in place, Trump admitted it is on "massive life support". In his latest comments, Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu said the war is not over because Iran still has nuclear material, suggesting the ceasefire is unlikely to survive for long.

- Performance across major global equity indices was mixed. The S&P 500 in the US pared gains to finish the day 0.2% higher, with technology stocks supporting the rally. In Europe, the FTSE 100 gained 0.4%, but the Euro Stoxx 50 fell 0.3%, with luxury goods stocks leading the decline. In Asia, the Nikkei 225 was 0.5% lower, while the Hang Seng was flat. In Australia, the ASX 200 also traded in the red throughout yesterday's session, after opening more than 1% lower.
- The inflationary impulse from higher oil prices dominated bond markets, pushing yields higher. US Treasuries sold off by around 6-7bp across the curve, with a soft 3Y auction ahead of 10Y and 30Y issuance later this week pointing to weak demand.
- Gilts performed even worse, with the 10Y yield jumping 9bp to 5.0%, as pressure on British Prime Minister Keir Starmer to resign intensified further. Following weak Labour Party performance in last week's local elections, reports suggest at least 70 members of parliament are calling for his departure. In other major markets, moves were smaller, with 10Y Bund and JGB yields both up 4bp.
- Australian 10Y yield was little changed, as investors continued to speculate about fiscal policy changes in today's Federal Budget.
- In FX markets, the DXY pared earlier gains and finished broadly unchanged, just below 98. Moves in other major currencies were modest, with the EUR little changed. The GBP lost 0.2%, while the yen was 0.3% weaker. The AUD was steady, continuing to trade around 0.7250.
- Oil prices took another significant step higher on renewed Middle East headlines. The Brent July contract gained more than $3 to 104.5, while the WTI June contract climbed a similar amount (2.8%) to $98.1. Gold was little changed, but copper rose to a fresh record closing price of $13,943, supported by tight supply and declining inventory levels in China. Iron ore also headed higher, gaining 1.1%.

International Data

Headline China's CPI inflation surprised to the upside, rising to 1.2%yr in April from 1.0%yr in March. The pickup was driven by transport and energy, reflecting the effects of the war in the Middle East and stronger travel demand over public holidays. After three years in negative territory, inflation in the transport and communication category had turned positive at 0.9%yr in March and it has now jumped to 4.6%yr in April. Partly offsetting this, food price inflation eased to a six-month low of 1.6%yr. Producer prices also signalled a stronger inflation impulse, with headline PPI rate rising from 0.5%yr to 2.8%yr, the highest since August 2022.

US existing home sales rose only marginally in April, up 0.2%mtm to an annualised pace of 4.02mn, below last year's average of 4.07mn. While demand remains soft, supply appears to be ample: inventories increased 2.7%mtm to 1.47mn. At the current sales rate, that stock equates to 4.4 months of supply, the highest in six months.
